Pacemaker implant is a 1st for Glades

By JEFF BROWN
BELLE GLADE - A Glades General Hospital cardiologist, Dr. Chandra Venugopal, became the first doctor to implant a pacemaker in the Glades Friday, August 6.

Venugopal planted a temporary pacemaker in the heart of Sweetie Caldwell, 72 of 240 Northwest Tenth Avenue in a fluoroscopic procedure lasting about 35 to 40 minutes. That time is about average, he said.

Caldwell was the victim of an acute heart attack, giving her heart a "lot of extra beats," and making it difficult to position the electrode on the right ventricle, said Venugopal.

"The hardest part is placing the electrode into position," he said. "If it is not in a good position, it will not function properly."

The pacemaker was implanted, without benefit of open-heart surgery, through the subclavian vein using a fluoroscopic control, said Venugopal.

In a couple of weeks, Caldwell will be checked to determine if a permanent pacemaker is necessary. A temporary pacemaker, which runs off of a lithium battery outside the individual, can be used for about two weeks, he said.

He said that although this was the first pacemaker implanted in a Glades area hospital, he had implanted about 75 temporary pacemakers and 25 permanent pacemakers at a hospital in Brownsville, New Jersey.

If Caldwell needs a permanent pacemaker, that will be implanted at Glades General Hospital also, according to Venugopal.

Venugopal is one of two cardiologists on the staff at Glades General Hospital. His wife, Sushama Venugopal, will be the pediatrician at the birthing center in the hospital.

According to Venugopal, the technology behind pacemakers dates back to the late 1950s and early 1960s. At that time, all pacemakers were installed through open heart surgery.

In the late 1960s or early 1970s, medical science began to experiment with using fluoroscopic controls instead of using surgery.

Venugopal called the fluoroscopic technique used at Caldwell a "minor surgical procedure."

Caldwell was doing well, he said Tuesday.

THE FIRST PERSON to have a pacemaker implanted in a Glades area hospital was Sweetie Caldwell, above. Dr. Chandra Venugopal, below, performed the operation and said Caldwell is doing well after the operation Friday.

Council raises dike questions

PAHOKEE - The Pahokee City Council told one of the officers of the corporation seeking to develop the harbor area that it must come up with some concrete plans before the city makes any commitments.

"Personally, I'm not in favor of us getting the state park back until I see something of what you'll intend to do," said Councilman William E. McKinstry. The listing on the state park registry is "worth something," he told Robb Tiller at the council's regular Tuesday, August 10 session.

McKinstry also said he had heard some residents express concern over access to the lake and asked Tiller if the corporation would restrict access.

Tiller replied that access wouldn't be restricted, but later in the meeting, with the harbor question still on their minds, McKinstry said Tiller and Sylvia Schantz, the two individuals who proposed the project to the city, hadn't ruled out a "condominium style" guard house and gate at the base of the dike at an earlier meeting.

Tiller offered to have the plans for the development, and what help the corporation expected from the city, put into "black and white" for a workshop session of the council Thursday, August 19, at 7:30 p.m.

Mayor Duncan Padgett said some people had expressed concern to him over the proposed long-term 50-year lease the city would give My Hotel, Inc. on the harbor and marina.

"To some people, 50 years seems like a long time," he said. "It doesn't seem like very long to me, but it does to them."

He said some people would want a referendum on a 50-year lease and asked if the corporation would consider a 30-year lease.

"I think that would hurt us, mayor," said Tiller. Tiller also said the corporation is seeking industrial revenue bonds and needs city approval to acquire them for the project, estimated Tuesday night to cost between $10 million and $15 million.

At the meeting two weeks ago when Tiller first approached the council with the proposal, he said the project would probably cost about five million dollars. Last week, in a telephone interview it jumped to $10 million.

"It's gone up," Tiller told the council Tuesday night.

Councilman Ronnie Graydon said he hadn't heard anything about industrial revenue bonds before and Tiller said he had not mentioned them before.

In a related issue, the council approved the assignment of the current lease on the harbor facilities to one of the original two partners in the venture, with the stipulation that if the proposal to develop the dike succeeds, the city can cancel the lease with 120 days notice.

"If we don't do something with My Hotel, Inc., I'm in favor of keeping the lease just like it is," said McKinstry, who chaired the meeting in Jon Mock's absence.

"So am I," said Graydon.

In other business, the city council approved a change in the application of Hatton Properties for industrial revenue bonds to finance construction of a nursing home in Pahokee.

J. Ray Hatton II said the project has grown from a 60-bed nursing home to a 120-bed nursing home and nurses quarters. The cost has increased and the company is seeking $4.2 million instead of the original $1.75 million, he said.

Beer, wine lockup to be changed

BELLE GLADE - Shopkeepers won't have to keep their beer and wine behind lock and key on Sunday mornings when a code change the Belle Glade City Attorney is working on is enacted.

The Belle Glade City Commissioners voted to revise a section of chapter four of the city code which requires local merchants who sell wine and beer to lock up the merchandise until 2 p.m. on Sundays.

The revision which City Attorney John E. Baker is working on will remove the lock-up requirement.

The commissioners heard Monday night, August 9, that it wasn't practical for some businesses to abide by the law.

"We're putting some people in the position where they're breaking the law because there's no alternative," said Police Inspector Mike Miller.

The law was originally written and adopted because the police department was having trouble enforcing the prohibition against selling alcoholic beverages before 2 p.m. Sundays, Baker told the commission.

Some merchants complained that they were losing money because competitors were breaking the law.

The city decided to require vendors to lock up the product during prohibited hours because it would be easier for police to enforce the code.

The law states that "the total inventory of alcoholic beverages of (vendors) shall be securely locked so as to be inaccessible to patrons of such business places" during the prohibited hours of sale.

The commissioners in attendance, Mayor Thomas L. Altman, George Goforth, Charles Goodlett and Claude Tindall, unanimously voted to remove that phrase from the code.

"If any merchant chooses to risk his license by selling alcohol during the prohibited hours, a locked cabinet isn't going to stop him," said Altman.

In other business, the commission:

- Voted to accept a banking services agreement with Florida First National Bank of Belle Glade.

PHA retains 2, replaces one

PAHOKEE - The Board of Commissioners of the Pahokee Housing Authority retained Mead Maxwell as chairman and Elijah Baines as vice chairman, but replaced Israel Cooper with Frank Gillis as assistant secretary-treasurer Tuesday, August 10.

That action was taken at a regularly scheduled meeting of the commissioners. Other matters the board discussed included:

- The lawsuit filed against the authority by South Florida Sanitation, South Florida Sanitation is suing the authority for breach of franchise because it has been collecting its own garbage.

The problem is that they don't know what to do.

"It's going to take some drastic action," said Mayor Thomas L. Altman. "I'm prepared to take drastic action."

Commissioner Charles Goodlett, who brought the matter up before the commission Monday, August 9, said City Attorney John E. Baker was

Commission refuses time reinstatement

By JEFF BROWN
 BELLE GLADE - The Belle Glade City Commission Monday, August 9, unanimously refused to reinstate about seven years of time for retirement purposes.

Lieutenant George W. Farnall, an identification officer with the Belle Glade Department, had asked the city to restore for retirement purposes the time he spent as an employee of the department between October 5, 1956 and July 13, 1963.

Farnall was rehired by the department May 19, 1969, five years and ten months after he had left it because they didn't have a retirement plan in effect, he told the commission.

The department started a retirement plan in 1964, and all of the time Farnall has since rejoining the department will go toward his retirement benefits.

The city commissioners refused to reinstate the six years, nine months and eight days of previous service for retirement purposes.

"I'd have a problem with the precedent and the impact on the plan as a whole," Mayor Thomas L. Altman said, explaining his plans to vote against reinstatement. "I consider you a friend and the easiest thing in world would be for me to vote yes."

When asked by Commissioner George Goforth why it took so long for him to join the department again after reinstatement, Farnall replied "I came back and I joined as just as soon as I could."

He said he was involved with a new job and he never intended to leave it. In 1969, the job ran out and he came back to the department, he said.

Prior to 1964, when the department did not have a retirement plan, the city charter stated one would be provided, said Farnall. One wasn't provided, so he left.

"All I'm doing is asking you to rectify that misfortune or misdeed," said Farnall.

"That misdeed was rectified," said Altman. "Had you been here when the plan was adopted, you would have had the same opportunity."

"Consciously I cannot vote to do this," said Goforth.

Thefts plague neighborhood

PAHOKEE - Pahokee police are seeking leads in a rash of thefts to hit a city neighborhood Saturday night and Sunday morning.

According to police, four individuals reported thefts Sunday morning.

Dennis Delucia reported the theft of a lawnmower from his home at 3178 Bacom Point Road. A bicycle and lawnmower were taken from the 2841 SW 14th Street residence of Dale Allen that same night. Allen lives around the corner from Delucia, according to police.

Two other SW 14th Street residents reported thefts that night, according to Pahokee police.

James D. Sweet reported the theft of a plastic tackle box with tool in it from a utility room at his home at 2536 SW 14th Street.

Jill Sheffield of 2535 SW 14th Street reported a theft of a bicycle and chainsaw from her property.

USDA offers sugar loan program

Secretary of Agriculture John R. Block has proposed a nonrecourse sugar loan program under which the United States Department of Agriculture would offer loans on raw cane and refined beet sugar at national average prices of 17 and 20.1 per pound, respectively.

Under the proposal, sugar processed between April 1, 1982, and June 30, 1983 would be eligible for the loans which become available for six months beginning October 1.

All loans would mature no later than September 30, 1983, said Block. The interest rate on these loans would be the rate applicable to all loans issued by the USDA's Commodity Credit Corporation during the month of disbursement.

To be eligible for the loan, processors must agree to pay the minimum specified support price to any producer who delivers sugar beets or sugarcane to the processor.

The deadline for receiving comments on the proposal, which appeared in the July 30, Federal Register, is August 25, 1982.

Comments should be sent to the director, cotton, grain and rice price support division; USDA-ASCS; PO Box 2415; Washington, D.C. 20013.

Juvenile arrested on lottery charge

BELLE GLADE - Belle Glade Police Monday night, August 9, arrested a 17-year old juvenile for aiding in the conducting of a lottery.

According to Detective Mike Johnson, Sergeant Leroy Carrigan observed a Cadillac parked in the middle of SW Avenue C in the SW Eighth Street area. He was at the scene when a 17-year old male carrying a brown bag arrived and admitted he owned the car.

The youth became nervous when Carrigan engaged him in conversation, and gave Carrigan the opportunity to observe the contents of the bag.

Inside, Carrigan allegedly saw what he recognized to be lottery paraphernalia.

The youth was taken to the police station where he waived the right to a search warrant.

Inside the bag, police allegedly found $961.65 and 245 lottery tickets.

According to Johnson, the youth was released into the custody of his parents.

Gun theft suspect wanted in Louisiana

PAHOKEE - A man Pahokee Police arrested for stealing a revolver will be sent to Louisiana to face charges stemming from a stolen vehicle incident.

According to Pahokee Police, Eddie Earl Rogers, 23, of 393 South Lake Avenue in Pahokee and 641 SW Avenue C Place in Belle Glade, was arrested Monday, August 9, for the theft of a 22 RC revolver.

After telling police where they could find the gun, Rogers allegedly told police that he had stolen a pick-up truck in Lake Charles, Louisiana, and sold it to an unidentified man in Belle Glade.

Belle Glade Police are seeking the white on blue pick-up with Louisiana tags, according to the Pahokee police.

According to police report, B.R. Willis of Daniels' Place in Pahokee, had loaned the revolver to Barbara Oliver of Rardin Avenue.

Oliver allegedly tried to pawn the gun by giving it to J.D. Steele of Cypress Avenue, who allegedly tried to pawn it to another individual.

Rogers allegedly stole the gun and disappeared.

When confronted by Steele, Rogers claimed that his twin brother must of stole the gun.

Rogers was arrested and taken into custody, according to police.

After he allegedly told police that he stole the pick-up, a check with Louisiana authorities confirmed that Rogers was wanted in that state for unauthorized use of a motor vehicle. He will be extradited, according to police.

ARC repays seed money through recycling center

BELLE GLADE. After only one year in business, profits from an aluminum recycling center have enabled the Association for Retarded Citizens/Glades Area to repay $14,000 in "seed money" provided by National Brands, the local distributor of Anheuser-Busch beers, to start the program.

"From here on out, all the funds generated by our recycling center will go toward our association's operational budget," Ms. Kris Mennella, executive director of the Glades Area association, said. "But the center has already benefited our clients by helping them feel that they are contributing members of the community."

National Brands provided $14,000 in interest-free seed money to the Glades Area association to pay for site preparation and provide start-up funds for the recycling center at 500 West Canal Street, in Belle Glade. In addition, Container Recovery Corp. (CRC) — the recycling subsidiary of the Anheuser-Busch Companies — provided the association with $15,000 worth of machinery necessary to operate the center at no charge, and purchases all aluminum collected at the center.

"Our first year has certainly shown that people will recycle if they're given the chance," Ms. Mennella said. "If our program keeps growing as it has been, it will have a meaningful impact on our operating budget in 1983."

The Glades Area association serves approximately 60 developmentally disabled persons. The association's staff were trained by CRC and National Brands personnel to operate the center, which is open from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. on Fridays and from 8 a.m. to noon on Saturdays.

Since opening approximately a year ago, the center has recycled almost 240,000 pounds of aluminum. Currently, it is paying 23 cents a pound for all aluminum cans brought in — or slightly less than a penny a can.

"There are a lot of good reasons to recycle — but being of assistance to an organization of this kind is one of the best," Marv Florman, president of National Brands, said. "Of course, recycling is also a good way to combat litter and provide a supplementary source of income to individuals and groups that bring cans into the center."

In 1981, CRC and participating Anheuser-Busch wholesalers collected more than 110 million pounds of aluminum — or 2.4 billion cans — for re-use.

Man saves crash victim

PAHOKEE. A Pahokee resident pulled a crash victim from a canal last week to save his life, according to Pahokee police.

Willis Barnett, 67, of 436 Sago Court, Pahokee, was driving east on Milder Road when his 1973 Ford station wagon crossed McClure Road and went into the canal.

Felton Millnor, 29, of 86 N Street, number 44, Golden Village, Pahokee, was following Barnett and pulled Barnett, who is missing an arm, from the canal and placed him on the roof of the automobile, where he administered mouth-to-mouth resuscitation.

According to the Pahokee police, Barnett could not swim and Millnor probably saved his life.

The water in the canal is five feet deep, and the bed consists of about four feet of mud, according to Officer James Wagoner who investigated the incident with Officer Ethridge Bryant.

going to examine the deed, but it looked like the city couldn't sell the park to a developer.

Increased police presence hasn't worked in the past because the individuals causing the problems move to another section, Goodlett said at Monday's meeting.

Most of the complaints the city has received involved youths making noise, usually in the evening hours, according to Goodlett.

City Manager Rolfe Wagner said he has attempted to have formal meetings set up with youths at school and informal meetings with those out of school in an effort to solve the problem and "inhibit anti-social behavior," but added that there are "no easy solutions."

Altman said the park and the problems it has brought with it has "detracted from the residential quality of the neighborhood," despite promises from city officials that it would not.

He said the city should attempt to rectify the problem now.

Baker said he will be looking up the applicable laws concerning the city's ability to vacate the park and sell it, but added that most property owners in the area probably wouldn't want the park removed because that would decrease their property values.

He also said the ultimate solution to the problem would be family oriented with the parents and their children talking things over with the residents in the area.

"It's the last vestige of a child's rebellion against growing up," said Baker. "Some method of family supervision is needed. The police department isn't supposed to be a parental guidance system, although in a practical matter, all too often they are."

"We always had complaints about the kids," said Goodlett, the former police chief. "They go there and spend their time, as a bunch of kids will do. It's not unusual. They're having trouble with parks all over the country."

Correction: our mistake

It was erroneously reported in a story on page 9A of the August 5, 1982 Herald-Observer that Frances V. Miner was in police custody following an incident involving forged checks.

Miner is not in custody and the story should have stated that Timothy L. Hicks of 1001 NE 26th Street, Belle Glade, was in custody.

Miner's checks were allegedly forged by Hicks, and Hicks was arrested and charged with the crime, not Miner.

The Herald-Observer apologizes and regrets the error.

Moving with deliberation in Pahokee

The Pahokee city council is acting properly in its desire to see some concrete proposals from My Hotel, Inc., before it makes any commitments to the harbor development project.

The proposal to build a recreational resort at the harbor has to overcome a lot of "ifs" to succeed.

One of the biggest obstacles will be whether the city can get control of lands currently controlled by the state. Robb Tiller, one of the two heads of the corporation interested in developing the land, said the state has been interested in turning the lands over to the city for some time.

The city has been avoiding the takeover because of the cost to operate and maintain the lands, Tiller said.

If that is true, this represents an ideal opportunity for the city to gain control of the lands and open it up for the development of a worthwhile enterprise.

But the city council members shouldn't, and won't, assume responsibility for the state lands until some concrete proposals and commitments are made by My Hotel, Inc.

Another big "if" involves capital. When Tiller first took his proposal to the Pahokee City Council, he said it would be about a $5 million project. A week later, that figure had escalated to $10 million and Tiller was talking about forming a corporation and selling shares.

Tuesday night, he placed the cost at between $10 million and $15 million.

$15 million is a lot of money. For a group of outsiders to be willing to invest that much in the Glades seems almost beyond belief.

It must seem so to Tiller and Sylvia Schantz also, because Tuesday, Tiller told the council he needed their approval to seek industrial revenue bonds.

Before considering that, the council members said they wanted to see some plans and commitments made, some question answered by the corporation Tiller and Schantz founded to undertake the project.

The corporation is asking for a long term lease, and the city must be certain city interests are protected.

We think the council is acting in the best interest of the city's citizens.

The jobs created by the facility, the business it would bring in and use of the harbor and lake could only help the city.

But too many questions remain unanswered and the council is acting wisely in taking its time to get the answers before it makes a commitment it can't get out of.

I sure am glad school is starting. A whole summer with Mom sure gets on a guy's nerves.

There's only one insurmountable human problem

Is there such a thing as an insurmountable problem?

With one exception, I doubt it — given enough logical thinking, money, and elbow grease.

The one exception lies in the field of human communications.

I have my doubts that humans will ever be able to communicate well enough to solve our differences.

"What we have here is failure to communicate," said the warden in the old Paul Newman movie, "Cool Hand Luke."

The warden was trying to tell Paul that he shouldn't try to run away from his prison road crew. But Paul wasn't listening. He kept trying to escape anyway.

The fact is that the warden couldn't convince Paul that staying put in his unjust institution was the thing to do.

Everyday human communications isn't exactly like that, but there are similarities. Often, there is no right or wrong, and certainly no villains.

Usually we shake our heads that we understand without actually hearing what we're told. We talk but we don't listen. And we probably don't care.

Many of us are so hard-headed that even when we are told we are killing ourselves we keep right on doing it. If we really listened to what the Surgeon General and the American Cancer Society tells us about cigarette smoking, we'd throw the filthy things down in stark terror.

For years, we have heard about the dangers of using hard and soft drugs. In the current issue of Rolling Stone magazine is an article which says that most of the people who smoked marijuana in the 1960s have stopped. The main reason is that they finally came to the conclusion that it was making them crazy, literally.

It seems that we have to learn things the hard way, and that means doing it our way.

You can apply the same rationale to bigger things such as wars. 1982 seems to have been a bumper crop for wars. Afghanistan, Falklands, Lebanon, Iraq-Iran, El Salvador, the list goes on.

None of these have resulted in a clear-cut decision with the exception of the Falklands. And even if Israel is successful in expelling the PLO from Lebanon, there seems little hope that this will provide anything other than temporary relief.

We humans are doing what we have always done, individually making our own mistakes. We seem to be programmed that way.

I don't really have any quarrel with the theory of evolution, except I don't believe we are any smarter now than we have ever been.

We may have more books and spacemen now, but when it comes down to the nitty gritty, we still respond like our cavemen ancestors did. That is the insurmountable problem.

The high cost of attorney fees

Dear Editor

During the last week there have been several statements by Mayor Tom Altman concerning the amount in the City of Belle Glade budget for attorney's fees. Mr. Altman has implied that the high cost of legal fees is directly caused by certain law suits filed by Florida Rural Legal Services. Since Mr. Altman is presently running for re-election, I know that he finds it difficult to avoid posturing for the public, however, since the truth of a candidate's statement is relevant to his qualifications to hold public office, I think that the residents of Belle Glade deserve to know all the facts concerning this matter and not just those that Mr. Altman wishes to present.

The reason why the cost of legal fees for the City has increased is due primarily to the fact that the City has hired three law firms to represent it in these cases. At the present time, the City has retained one firm from Washington D.C., one firm from West Palm Beach and one firm from the City of Belle Glade. I am flattered that the City feels that it needs three law firms to represent it in cases that I am handling, but I do wonder why at each hearing the City has no less than four lawyers at the counsel table, but only one participates in the hearing.

The law firm from Washington D.C. is a very large firm and I am sure that they are not cheap. Also, their travel costs to West Palm Beach and Belle Glade increase the City's legal fees. If the residents of Belle Glade are unhappy about this budget item, maybe they should question their Mayor about the number of attorneys who are feeding at the City's trough.

Very Truly Yours,
Donald E. Mason

The Pahokee Chamber of Commerce endorsed a joint hospital to serve the residents of Belle Glade and Pahokee.

The endorsement was made in preparation of an Aug. 21 election on whether the joint hospital ought to be built or whether the two cities should maintain separate hospitals.

Chamber directors said they were impressed with the logic of the argument that the small patient load of the separate facilities made it impossible to get many specialists in the Glades.

In a related story, a consultant told the Hospital Taxpayers League the best site for a new hospital, joint or separate, would be at the site of Belle Glade Memorial Hospital.

The league was formed and the consultant called in to get an independent evaluation on the problem.

The Bank of Pahokee was in the midst of remodeling an adjoining building, which would be connected to the bank building to more than double its size.

The bank's air conditioning was being upgraded and remodeling included the addition of a ladies' lounge and an employees' kitchenette.

The lobby was being expanded to include what was then being used as offices for the president and his secretary.

The South Bay City Council lopped $52.50 a month off Police Chief R.C. White's salary, purportedly for refusing to operate a speed trap.

White had recently been in the limelight for eliminating bolita operations in South Bay, an action preceded by a tightening up of liquor laws in South Bay.

White said his reward was to have his salary slashed because he had failed to bring in sufficient revenues in the form of fines and forfeitures. Police Commissioner Gordon Bowen said White's statement was wrong but he said he had not had, "one ounce of cooperation," from White.

"This town is growing," Bowen was quoted as saying. "It needs more revenue. Mr. White just ain't bringing in enough revenue."

In a later statement, Mayor M.J. Hardy, who at first refused to comment, said the council hadn't told White to create a speed trap but that there was a danger from high-speed traffic on the city's highways.

Delano Bill Mathis, son of D.B. "Bama" Mathis of Belle Glade, was critically injured in a mill accident in Cantonment, a small town 15 miles from Pensacola.

Mathis was working in a St. Regis Paper Company mill when a swinging piece of machinery struck him, knocking him unconscious for 13 hours.

He was intermittently unconscious for 72 hours and his parents drove to Pensacola to be with him while he was in the hospital there.

FSES to host employers meeting

BELLE GLADE—The local Florida State Employment Service will host a meeting of area employers on Wednesday, Aug. 18 at 3 p.m. at the FSES of-fice located at 1500

Northwest Ave. L. The meeting is the formation of the Job Service Employer Committee, part of the Job Service Improvement Program to be instituted in the Glades.

Sylvia L. Dougherty, manager of the local FSES office said the Job Service Improvement Program (JSIP) is a tool used by area employers to shape their local employment service to fit the unique needs of the commu-nity.

All area employers interested in a long-term commitment to improving the local Job Service office, are urged to contact Ms. Dougherty at 996-3068 for more information.

The Purple Turtle donates prizes

PALM BEACH—The Purple Turtle, the children's boutique in the Esplanade on Worth Avenue, is donating the prizes for Planned Parenthood's Christmas card contest, it was recently announced.

Cash prizes of $100, $50, and $25 will be awarded by The Purple Turtle for the top three entries in the contest. The winning design will also be printed on Christmas cards to be sold in the community for the benefit of Planned Parenthood.

According to Deborah Beard, executive director of Planned Parenthood, "It is important to have community involvement in such programs, and we are especially delighted that The Purple Turtle is supporting our efforts so generously by donating the prizes."

Contestants must be between the ages of 10-17 and submit their designs on white board, size 8 1/8" x 11". The deadline for entering is August 15, and the winner will be announced in September. All entries should include the contestant's name, address, telephone number and age. For more information, call Planned Parenthood at 996-4223.

God and Nature theme for VBS

BELLE GLADE -- "God and Nature" will be the theme of the Vacation Bible School at the Everglades Presbyterian Church in Belle Glade, Wednesday, August 18 through Saturday, August 21.

According to Reverend David T. Evans, the program will begin Wednesday, Thursday and Friday with a 2 p.m. assembly in the church sanctuary. Classes will be conducted according to age starting at 2:15 and refreshments will be served at 3:15. Recreation activities will follow at 3:30 p.m. The assembly program will include singing, scripture and an inspirational talk. The Friday afternoon program will include a film on the nature and environment surrounding Lake Okeechobee. This will serve as an introduction to Saturday's program led by Wilbur Curless, an environmental specialist for Palm Beach County Schools, according to Evans.

Saturday the program will include a cook-out at the marina. The program will start at 9 a.m. and continue through lunch. Evans said participants in the school are urged to bring a light colored T-shirt because a special silk-screened insignia may be applied to them.

Ms. Dougherty said the program has been used successfully in many parts of the state and nation.

The Job Service Employer Committee (JSEC) is the steering committee for the program and it determines what steps need to be taken and how to take them, according to Ms. Dougherty.

"JSEC and JSIP have proven effective in the past because they give the employer a chance to determine what service he gets for his tax money," said Ms. Dougherty.

The proposed program has never been tried in the Glades.

Cooperative education offered

Cooperative Education is the three-way partnership of the student, the college, and the employer.

Cooperative Education at Palm Beach Junior College gives the students the opportunity to earn academic credit and income, while applying what is learned in the classroom to a realistic work setting.

The program enables employers, students, and the college to share in planned and meaningful training experiences.

While participating in the program, students work as regular employees of the cooperating employer and receive professional supervision and training. It is possible for a student already employed to receive college credit by pursuing learning objectives that will enhance his/her career development. Students also attend a weekly seminar that meets each Wednesday during the semester, 6 p.m. to 7 p.m.

Education, Theater, Computer Science, Air Conditioning and Refrigeration, Engineering, Music, Social Science, and Criminal Justice.

Registration is presently under way. Classes begin August 24. Students or employers who have questions related to participation in the program may call Dr. Naomi Conley, Director of Cooperative Education, at 996-3055.

Pahokee's Frank Belk honored

By AILSA DEWING

In bygone years, Frank Belk had the habit of entertaining old friends at a barbecue. Last Sunday, many of those friends honored Frank at a surprise barbecue at the Clewiston Airport.

The party was a "thank you" from pilots he's taught to fly, pilots whose planes he's kept in repair and pilots who said they've learned more about airplanes after spending an hour with Frank Belk than they'd known when they got their licenses. A banner strung up for the party said it all: "Thank You Frank Belk."

For 19 years Belk, who lives in Pahokee, was manager of the Pahokee Airport and for three years he managed Clewiston's. He doesn't know how many Glades area people he taught to fly but he has filled five log books and estimates he's put in about 5,000 hours of instructing private pilots. So while many of the friends who feted Belk Sunday came from nearby, others traveled some distance for his party. An attorney drove from Gainesville because his new plane hadn't been delivered. The Rev. Bob Shelly, pastor of the Canal Point Methodist Church for many years, flew down from Tampa. Also on hand were Belk's wife, Minnie Lee, his five daughters, four granddaughters and two grandsons.

The barbecue was hosted by Jerrie Cobb and Ruth Lummis of Moore Haven. In 1979, Belk flew to Cobb's assistance in Colombia after an engine on her plane went out during one of her mercy missions to the Amazon Indians.

Jake Bixby, an FAA air worthiness inspector from Hollywood, was at the party and he said that Belk, who is also an inspector, is an expert on the Piper J3.

"Most experts have gone to service schools," said Bixby, "but Belk learned what he knows from flying them and fixing them."

Belk's flying years go back to 1932 in Miami. On his first solo flight, made in a C2 Aircona with pontoons, the engine failed and Belk landed in Biscayne Bay.

Since then he's made 34 emergency landings and suffered no injuries. "When an engine quits, you've got to fly it yourself," said Belk.

"I used to just try to find a field to land them in but later on I learned to put them down near a highway so I wouldn't have to walk so far. I've got flat feet," said Belk, grinning.

When Belk said he'd never had anything hurt but his feelings, a friend reminded Belk he'd once broken his nose getting into a plane.

Eight years after solving, Belk had earned his instructor's license and when World War Two broke out in 1939, he and thousands of other civilian flight instructors were "drafted" to train US Air Force pilots.

"There's something people should know about what happened to those civilian instructors," Belk said, explaining that they were given serial numbers, formally discharged from the air corps enlisted reserves, but were never given military benefits.

During the war, Belk recalled, he wore the same pair of shoes for three years because the civilian ration board wouldn't issue him coupons — claiming he was military — and the military wouldn't allow him to use the post exchange.

After the war, Belk made his living as a crop duster for 19 years. After a week in which he'd flown 56 hours before he flipped his plane over in a cornfield, he decided he was tired of dusting crops.

There were no standing testimonials Sunday at Belk's barbecue, but his friends had many kind words about Frank.

"He's helped me out plenty of times," said Jim Smith, who now manages Clewiston's airport. "There isn't anything in the world I wouldn't do for that man."

Tom Maloney, who flew in from Pompano Beach for Belk's party, said Belk had taught him more about flying after he had his license than his instructor had taught him beforehand. "If Frank said to me he could fly a barn door, I'd get on it with him."

Since 1976 Belk hasn't done much flying and his Cessna 172 spends most of its time in a hangar. After a heart attack in 1970, Belk was grounded for medical reasons. Three times he was issued temporary permits to fly but since 1976 he hasn't bothered to apply again.

Flying used to be an obsession with me, but it isn't anymore," he explained, adding that he'd probably put in more than 100,000 hours of flying time.

But repairing planes and helping friends repair theirs is. And that's how friends lured Belk to his surprise party. He thought he was driving over to Clewiston Airport Sunday to help his friend Jerrie Cobb fix her plane.

ARC repays $14,000 seed money through aluminum recycling center

BELLE GLADE - After only one year in business, profits from an aluminum recycling center have enabled the Association for Retarded Citizens/Glades Area to repay $14,000 in "seed money" provided by National Brands, the local distributor of Anheuser-Busch beers, to start the program.

"From here on out, all the funds generated by our recycling center will go toward our association's operational budget," Ms. Kris Mennella, executive director of the Glades Area association, said. "But the center has already benefitted our clients by helping them feel that they are contributing members of the community."

National Brands provided $14,000 in interest-free money to the Glades Area association to pay for site preparation and provide start-up funds for the recycling center at 500 West Canal Street, in Belle Glade. In addition, Container Recovery Corp., (CRC), the recycling subsidiary of the Anheuser-Busch Companies, provided the association with $15,000 worth of machinery necessary to operate the center at no charge, and purchases all aluminum collected at the center.

"Our first year has certainly shown that people will recycle if they're given the chance," Ms. Mennella said. "If our program keeps growing as it has been, it will have a meaningful impact of our operating budget in 1983."

The Glades Area association serves approximately 60 developmentally disabled persons. The association's staff were trained by CRC and National Brands personnel to operate the center.

Humane Society wants no more mercy hunts

WASHINGTON, D.C. - The Humane Society of the United States (HSUS) announced Aug. 4, that the Society has proposed legislation that would protect Florida's wildlife from future "emergency" hunts, such as the recent Everglades deer kill, to Florida Governor Bob Graham.

In a letter to Graham, HSUS President, John A. Hoyt said the hunt was "unwise, unnecessary and represented a failure of Florida law to protect either the deer in question or the public interest of the people in Florida in the wise stewardship of Florida's wildlife heritage."

"The facts of this tragic episode mandate that the Florida legislature utilize its constitutional authority to determine legally binding standards for emergency killing of wildlife," Hoyt said. "These standards must provide for public involvement and assign the burden of proof to those who would allow the killing."

The proposed legislation, endorsed by the Florida Federation of Humane Societies, would create strict standards for allowing similar public hunts and would require opportunities for both public comment and judicial review of any such plan, according to Dr. John W. Grandy, HSUS vice president for wildlife and environment.

Under the proposed legislation, no hunt could take place without approval of the Governor, "thus returning the ultimate stewardship of Florida's wildlife to the people of Florida through their elected representatives," said Grandy.

"The burden of proof, together with citizen suit and enforcement provisions will eliminate the poorly conceived and unnecessary destruction of wildlife that characterized the Everglades deer kill," he said.

Grandy added that the HSUS is calling on the Governor as well as its membership, local humane societies and the citizens of Florida to support the measure.

Keeping the faith

by Joe Ed McGahay

"My son, pay attention to what I say; listen closely to My words. Do not let them out of your mouth, lest you be put to death; for they are life to those who find them and health to the man's whole body."

Proverbs 4:20-22NIV

This is the third of three articles on Gods' word (the Bible). The first one was concerning the authority of Gods' Word. The second one based on Hebrews 4:11 was concerned with the power of Gods' Word. We discovered that the words of Jesus were full of power, and that by the Word, God spoke creation into being. The written word (the Bible) is an extension of that same power. Now, I want us to consider one aspect of that power - the power of Gods' Word to bring health and healing.

Let me say to begin with that I am not in conflict with or in anyway against Medical Science. I deeply appreciate the work. At least two of our children lived to grow up because of the knowledge and care of the doctors. My wife, Dot-sy, is a nurse working presently at Everglades Memorial Hospital in Pahokee. Now after saying that we need to recognize that Gods' Word is very clear about Gods' healing power. There are a great many illustrations of that power, along with many other passages of scripture concerning Gods' healing of people.

Our passage of scripture from Proverbs is sometimes called Gods' medicine. It is really a set of directions for us to find and live in God given health and healing. First we are told to "pay attention" to what God is saying. How very often we read or hear the bible read without giving our attention to what it is saying. It is easy to let our minds become occupied with something else rather than Gods' Word. We need to read His word with our whole "attention." We need to shut out all else, and shut ourselves up with Gods' Word. God wants to teach us about Himself, about His healing power, and how we can benefit from that, but He can not do it unless we "pay attention" to what He is saying in His Word.

The second direction of Gods' prescription is to "listen closely to My words". What does that mean? I believe it means being teachable. There are some people who never learn anything new from Gods' Word. At sometime or another they learn some basic ideas from the Bible, or maybe from Sunday School teachers and a preacher, but then feel like they learned all they need to know. Therefore, they do not read or listen to the Bible to let it bring fresh understanding of Gods' will, purpose, and or direction into their lives. To "listen closely" to the Word of God is to ask ourselves what is God saying right now to me from this passage of scripture I am reading.

The third direction is "Do not let them out of your sight". We need to find the promises of God in His Word, and then read and re-read them until they are real to us. We need to be able to see those words before our eyes when the Bible is closed. All of us have both physical and spiritual eyesight. It is with our spiritual eyes that we see spiritual truths, when we get our spiritual eyes focused on Gods' Word and power then it starts to work in our lives.

The fourth direction is "Keep them within your heart". In Proverbs 4:23 we read, "Above all else, guard your heart, for it is the wellspring of life". We become what we have in our heart. If our heart is filled with love, we become loving people. If we fill our hearts with Gods' promises of health and healing we become healthy. If on the other hand we are always thinking about and talking about sickness, that is what we become.

For as this passage ends concerning the Word of God, "For they are life to them that find them and health (medicine) to mans' whole body". The Word of God is meant to be a source of health and healing for our whole being.

New licensing rules to take effect in October

TALLAHASSEE - Beginning October 1, persons applying for licenses as bail bond runners, life insurance or surplus lines agents will have to meet new requirements. Insurance Commissioner Bill Gunter said today. Previously, qualified persons seeking a license as life insurance or surplus lines agents only had to pass a state exam in order to be licensed. In the case of bail bond runners, not new rules, life insurance agent applications will have to complete 40 course hours, in addition to passing the state exam, in order to be licensed. Surplus lines agents even an exam was necessary. Now, under the rule-making authority granted him with the passage of the new insurance code, Gunter has proposed new rules for anyone wishing to become licensed in one of these three fields. Under the proposed can either attend classes for 60 hours or substitute one year's experience, in addition to the exam, in order to be licensed. Bail bond runners must take 20 hours of course work in criminal justice, in addition to the previous requirement of working under the supervision of a licensed bail bondsmen, in order to be licensed. These new standards are part of an overall plan by the Department to upgrade existing guidelines for license qualification courses with a more definite set of rules. These proposed rules will result in changes in the current licensing procedures for the areas mentioned. Gunter said that most schools offering license qualification courses already are in compliance with the requirements laid down in the proposed rules, which will take effect in October. "These proposed rules should provide greater clarification and guidance to schools offering license qualification insurance course instruction," Gunter said.

Census survey slated here

Local representatives of the Bureau of the Census will conduct a survey of employment in this area during the week of August 16-21, Forrest P. Lawley, Director of the Bureau's Regional Office in Atlanta, announced today. The survey is conducted for the U.S. Department of Labor in a scientifically designed sample of approximately 71,000 households throughout the United States. Employment and unemployment statistics based on results of this survey are used to provide a continuing measure of the economic health of the nation.

In June the survey indicated that of the 110.2 million men and women in the civilian labor force, 99.8 million were employed. The nation's unemployment rate was 9.5 percent, the same as in May. Information supplied by individuals participating in the survey is kept strictly confidential by law and the results are used only to compile statistical totals.

which is open from 9 A.M. to 3 p.m. on Fridays, and from 8 a.m. to noon on Saturdays.

Since opening approximately a year ago, the center has recycled almost 240,000 pounds of aluminum. Currently, it is paying 23 cents a pound for all aluminum cans brought in - or slightly less than a penny a can. "There are a lot of good reasons to recycle - but being of assistance to an organization of this kind is one of the best," Marv Florman, president of National Brands, said. "Of course, recycling is also a good way to combat litter and provide a supplementary source of income to individuals and groups that bring cans into the center."

In 1981, CRC and participating Anheuser-Busch wholesalers collected more than 110 million pounds of aluminum - or 2.4 billion cans for re-use. Anheuser-Busch, Inc. the world's largest brewer, produces Budweiser, Budweiser Light, Michelob, Michelob Light, Natural Light and Busch beers.

Absentee ballots are available

Absentee Ballots for the September 7th Primary Election are now available at the Supervisor of Elections Office at 810 Datura Street in West Palm Beach, and the Glades Office Building at 2976 State Road 15 in Belle Glade.

Voters who will be out of the county on election day may vote their ballots in person at any of these locations.

Absentee voters, as well as those who are unable to go to the polls due to illness or some other disability, may have a ballot mailed to them by calling 837-2650, or by sending a written request to the Supervisor of Elections, 810 Datura Street, West Palm Beach, FL 33401.

New registration cards mailed to every voter

New voter registration cards will be mailed to every registered voter in Palm Beach County today. The colorful new red, white and blue cards will list the voter's precinct & polling location, as well as the Congressional, State Senate and State House Districts in which they are eligible to vote. About half of the County's 241 precincts have had boundary changes due to legislative reapportionment, so that many voters will find they have new precinct numbers and polling locations. All voters have changes in the numbers of the State House, State Senate and Congressional Districts in which they are eligible to vote. Because of the new single member districts adopted by the legislature, voters who previously voted for six State House Members and three State Senators will now be voting for only one of each. Voters are urged to check all information on their new cards closely, and they should destroy their old voter registration cards.

Any registered voter who does not receive a card by Wednesday, August 18th should call the Elections Office at 837-2650. Voters who have moved from the address listed on the card should notify the Elections Office immediately by filling in the back of the card and mailing it to 810 Datura Street, West Palm Beach, 33401 so that a corrected card can be mailed to them prior to the September 7th Primary Election.

Home ant infestation

Lately a lot of people have been complaining about the heavy infestations of their landscapes and homes by ants. These pests normally are found in lawns and outside areas, but severe rains or adverse weather conditions often times drive large numbers of these indoors seeking shelter. There are many types of ants most being less than 3/8" length and either red or black in color. A lot of times ants will get in through openings around windows or doors where pipes enter through walls and these are the places you should check on a regular basis to be able to spot these cracks and seal them.

When ants are found in large numbers inside they should be controlled with household type products unless they are in inaccessible areas where professional spray services need to be used. A lot of people that leave exposed foods in kitchens or dining areas find these attract ants in large numbers so always make sure all foods are put away in canister type containers or in tightly sealed packages that would discourage ants. Ants also require moisture and often times will seek a lot of activity at night and not nearly as much during daylight hours. At periodic times ants swarm and the sudden appearance of dozens or hundreds of winged reproductives in the home cause a lot of concern to the residents. These swarms take place at night and these swarming ants are readily attracted to any lights left on. Sometimes lights attract swarms of ants from outside areas so make sure you do not have any cracks or openings around windows or doors where they may enter. Sometimes it helps to put a chemical barrier around the perimeter of the home since ants normally crawl rather than fly. Insecticides such as Sevin or Diazinon put in a strip around the perimeter of foundation of the building will aid in discouraging entry of many crawling pests in addition to ants. Outside colonies of ants in the landscape can be controlled with the same products or with specific ant baits available from your local garden stores. Inside the home, in addition to the commercial aerosol type products, baits and attractants are available which will provide some relief; however, there is no way to completely ant proof a home. Complete information on ants and their habits and suggested controls is available in the form of a printed sheet from your local Cooperative Extension Service office.
